WASHINGTON ZOO & SMITHSONIAN

July 25, 2010

The wonderful Washington Zoo and the mighty museums of the Smithsonian are tremendous attractions, but driving and parking in DC is a hassle. Let Red Lion transport you in comfort to the Zoo and the National Mall, so you arrive relaxed and ready to enjoy these national treasures. It's a splendid Sunday in the nation's capital!

Arrive around 10:00 AM at Washington's National Zoo, where you can grunt with a lowland gorilla, defy a Komodo dragon, see a sea lion, peer at a pair of giant pandas, and, in general, ogle thousands of species in a 163-acre biological park. Depart this delightful zoo at 12:30 PM to arrive at the Smithsonian Institution on the National Mall around 1:00 PM. (You can spend the entire day at the zoo or at the Smithsonian if you prefer; just tell your tour escort if you wish to do that.)

As for the marvels of the Smithsonian exhibited in mighty museums on the Mall, they include the popular Air and Space Museum, the Museum of the American Indian (with native foods in the cafeteria), the Sackler Gallery, the Arts & Industries Building, the Freer Gallery of Art, the Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Gardens, the Natural History Museum (see the new Ocean Hall), and the American History Museum (reopened after a massive renovation). If these wonders don't suffice, you can also explore the awesome National Gallery of Art and visit nearby landmarks like the WW II Memorial and, farther west, the Lincoln Memorial. Depart DC at 5:00 PM with a treasure trove of memories after a delightful day. Expected arrival in Hunt Valley is 6:50 PM, York 7:30 PM, Red Lion 8:00 PM.
