TITANIC: THE ARTIFACT EXHIBITION AT THE WHITAKER CENTER

August 8, 2010

The tragic tale of the Titanic has fascinated generations, and you, too, will be captivated by artifacts recovered from that ill-fated ship, which still lies on the deep sea floor. Along with admission to the Titanic exhibition at Harrisburg's Whitaker Center, also enjoy admission to the Whitaker Science Center, where three floors of engaging exhibits bring science to life. It's a fascinating afternoon in the state capital!

The Titanic set to sail

Travel back to April 15, 1912 to relive the tragic tale of the Titanic, captured in photographs, sound, and more than 200 genuine artifacts in a special exhibition at Harrisburg's marvelous Whitaker Center. Explore 1st Class and 3rd Class accommodations on the ill-fated ship, and see personal items recovered 80 years after they sank to the ocean floor, almost 2½ miles below the surface of the sea. Admission to the Whitaker Science Center is also included, so you can roam three floors of imaginative, engaging exhibits, including nine major areas spanning the world of science. Be sure to check out the new Forces of Nature gallery, which explores environmental science and includes the remarkable Science on a Sphere® animated globe. Experience the thrill of science and the drama of the Titanic's final hours, and live to tell about it! Expected return to New Cumberland is 5:05 PM, York 5:45 PM, Red Lion 6:15 PM.
