PENNSYLVANIA GRAND CANYON

October 8, 2010

Fortify yourself at Antlers Inn near charming Wellsboro, then ride into the Upper Gorge of the Grand Canyon in a covered wagon, delighting in a pioneer mode of transport! After this old-fashioned thrill, contemplate the view from the Pennsylvania Grand Canyon Overlook. It's a day of fun and autumn beauty!

Arrive in pretty little Wellsboro, the gateway to adventure in the Grand Canyon area of Pennsylvania. With its fine old homes, gas lamps, and town green, you may think you have stumbled on a New England village. Our guide joins us here before we motor nearby to Antlers Inn, a longtime local favorite in Ansonia. Fortify yourself with a bountiful luncheon buffet, including dessert.

Grand Canyon of PA

Then we're off on a covered wagon ride into the Upper Gorge of the Grand Canyon, a natural wonder fifty miles long and up to a thousand feet deep. We usually take two wagons into the gorge, with the guide riding one wagon in and the other out. (We may head to an alternate location if the gorge is closed.) As you traverse an old Indian trail along beautiful Pine Creek, delight in your return to pioneer times, but secretly appreciate the rubber tires, padding, and shock absorbers that ease the ride!

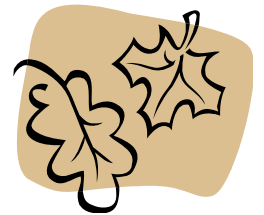

After this delightful experience, travel by motorcoach to the Grand Canyon Overlook and Visitors Center, where you can contemplate the spectacular view. Return home from this pretty autumn adventure refreshed by your lively encounter with a natural wonder. Expected arrival in New Cumberland is 7:20 PM, York 8:00 PM, Red Lion 8:30 PM.
